Targeting common concerns

KLINIC SOLUTIONS HAS INTRODUCED A RANGE OF COSMETIC DEVICES TO AUSTRALIA INCLUDING ONE TO TACKLE CELLULITE: WOMENS' NUMBER ONE COMPLAINT. LIZZY FOWLER REPORTS.

With more than 20 years experience in the aesthetics industry, Shaun Baldwin has recently joined forces with business partner, Ji Wallace, to create Klinik Solutions, a medical device company committed to helping men and women eradicate some of their most common cosmetic complaints.

'Having a personal training background, Ji and I understand the significance of a happy, healthy lifestyle and seeing the delight on client's faces,' says Baldwin, who worked on the popular TV show, 10 years younger in 10 days.

'I joined Shaun in developing Klinik Solutions to bring light to the lives of people who like to look good and feel great about themselves,' adds Wallace, who won Australia's only gymnastics medal in the Sydney Olympics.

Distributing a select range of medical devices, Klinik Solutions has honed in on some of the most common aesthetic concerns seen in Australia, offering novel solutions to help treat cellulite and eradicate nail fungus.

Women have long-sought a remedy for cellulite, which can plague thighs and other parts of the body. Thought to affect around eight out of 10 women, cellulite occurs when the strands that connect the layers of tissue and fat beneath the skin gradually harden and contract, leaving the fat bulging outwards in a lumpy fashion. 'We know that cellulite is the bane of many women's lives and appreciate the effort ladies go to to get rid of the problem,' says Baldwin. 'But no amount of running will achieve what energy wave therapy can achieve. It's quite amazing to see the before and after photos.'

The Swiss DolorClast Smart was originally developed to help address orthopaedic pain. Compact, lightweight and versatile, the device draws on radial shockwave therapy to tighten the epidermis, stimulate blood circulation and induce the production of collagen. As well as considerably improving the appearance of cellulite on areas of the body such as the upper thigh, treatment with the Swiss DolorClast can also result in a circumferential reduction.

'The treatment has already taken Europe by storm,' says

Baldwin. 'With the outdoor lifestyle we enjoy there is no reason to hide anymore – energy wave therapy can give women the freedom to bare some dimple free skin.'

Living in sunny climes, cellulite isn't always the only aesthetic concern for those wanting to strip down in the heat. Disguising unsightly nail fungus isn't always achievable, with warmer weather demanding strappy sandals and revealing footwear. Unfortunately, as much as 10 per cent of the world's population suffers onychomycosis, or fungal nail infections.

In an effort to alleviate the embarrassment felt by those suffering nail fungus, Klinik Solutions have recently introduced the Fox 1064 Laser to Australia. A simple procedure, laser light from the device passes through the nail and the surrounding tissue. This light is absorbed by pigment in the fungi, which causes the pigment to heat, killing the fungal organism. A single treatment is effective in clearing up to 83 per cent of cases and, for those in need of a repeat treatment, the procedure can be repeated six to eight weeks later.

'Patients don't have to adhere to a lengthy treatment protocol in order to see results,' says Wallace. 'Instead, they can look forward to clear nails after just one treatment.'

With a number of other devices in their portfolio, there's no doubt Wallace and Baldwin are using their experience and expertise to help surgeons and clinicians offer patients the fast, effective solutions they've been seeking. csbm
